CHAPTER 14

GST Exemption in Healthcare – Is it a Myth?

14.1 Given the increasingly mechanized and unhealthy nature of modern life, healthcare professionals and medical facilities have become indispensable	387
14.2 Healthcare services are generally considered exempt under prevailing regulatory frameworks	388
14.3 ITC forms part of cost since end service is exempt from GST	389
14.4 Other sectors related to healthcare all come with GST and also forms part of cost	390
14.5 Depreciation is claimable on the ITC part also which forms part of cost	391
14.6 Healthcare in India	392

14.8-3 Cataract removal and intra-ocular lens	394
14.8-4 Bradycardia, Heart Block, Arrhythmias and Pace-maker	394
14.9 Would making healthcare services taxable and availment of input tax credit make it cheaper	396
14.10 The moot questions	397
14.11 Is it possible that the output tax in healthcare is determined in such a manner that it almost equals the input taxes and thus no refund is required from the Government, would it be a win-win situation for all	401
14.12 Impact of import duty	402
14.13 Situations in other countries	404
